What is Repp doing in the Democratic Republic of the Congo?

REPP has invested USD 6 million to support the development and construction of a 13.7MWp portfolio of solar-hybrid isolated grids in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC). DRC is the second largest and fourth most populous country in Africa, with one of the richest endowments of natural resources globally.

What is the electricity access rate in the Democratic Republic of Congo?

The public version of the resulting report of the effort is available here. The Democratic Republic of Congo's national electricity access rate is estimated at 19%. Less than 1% of the rural population and 41% of the urban population has energy access. Of the country's 10 million households, only 1.6 million have access to electricity.

How will the DRC meet the ELEC-Tricity challenge?

The DRC aims to connect 32% of the country to electricity by 2030. Meeting this challenge will require co-ordinated efforts from various stakeholders, supportive policies and regulations, and technical assistance support to prospective projects in order to attract investments.

Is there an interconnected national power transmission network in the DRC?

There is no interconnected national power transmission network in the DRC, which is instead structured into three independent interprovincial grids. The western and southern grids are connected by a High Voltage Direct Current (HVDC) line. The eastern grid is more remote and will not be connected.
